LITHUANIAN UNIVERSITY OF HEALTH SCIENCES

International
Summer School
Practice

Analysis of mitochondrial functions

Mitochondria are cellular organelles producing ATP and participating in other processes, such as the generation of reactive oxygen species (ROS) and cell death.

Assessing mitochondrial functions provides insight into cellular energy metabolism and identification of impaired enzymes in various pathological conditions.